Call 1987

Julian Roberts has a unique, specialist practice in derivative disputes. He has been primarily active as an advocate since 1998, appearing regularly in the German courts and also in the English courts as required.

Commercial & Business Disputes

Most recently he has represented a number of UK SMEs in connection with losses on derivatives (interest rate swaps and other structured securities) and he has also appeared or advised in derivatives disputes on behalf of German clients and in applications for freezing orders and in cross-border wills and probate disputes.

In the London High Court, he was the principal advocate in a long judicial review case involving two Primary Care Trusts (R v Cambridgeshire PCT ex p European Surgeries Ltd, R v Suffolk PCT ex p European Surgeries Ltd). The client in each case was a healthcare provider and the issues were primarily ones of European law.

In Germany he has appeared as an advocate in numerous cases ranging from criminal trials, including extradition, to administrative, family and general common law matters. Julian also has extensive advisory experience in the field of healthcare law, especially in connection with cross-border trade in the EU.
